About Matthew

Matthew is a specialist Brass teacher with over 15 years' experience teaching Trumpet, French Horn, Trombone, Cornet, Tenor Horn, Baritone, Euphonium and Tuba.

Matthew started playing the trumpet at the age of 9 with lessons from the music service in Somerset. He went on to study with Paul Denegri and later Roger Webster at Leeds University. Whilst on the music course there he took up conducting with lessons from Eno Koço and also directed the University music society's sinfonia for two years.

During his time working for the Wiltshire Music Service, he taught pupils of all abilities from beginner to grade 8 and beyond, from both primary and secondary schools across the south of the county. Matthew is experienced in teaching jazz and classical styles and also in delivering First Access whole class projects with brass and recorder.

Matthew has performed with orchestras, jazz ensembles, shows and wind bands both as a player and a conductor and is currently the leader of the Salisbury Area Young Musician's Intermediate Wind Band.
