About Sarah

Sarah studied at Trinity College of Music in London in 2004, specialising on clarinet and composition, followed by a PGCE from the Institute of Education. While in London she worked as a performer in a number of venues including the Purcell Room, Queen Elizabeth Hall and the Linbury Studio at the Royal Opera House, and within a range of ensembles including orchestras, theatre bands, big bands, pop groups and smaller ensembles.

Sarah has been teaching since 2006 and has experience teaching class music in London Secondary Schools, whole class instrumental teaching for Hampshire and Wiltshire Music services as well as small group and one to one.

Sarah is passionate about music and always tries to make her lessons fun and accessible and believes learning an instrument is a wonderful, happy and confidence boosting experience that all children deserve to have during their time at school.
